TRANS-ATLANTIC RACE, BETWEEN TWO PLANES, ON

New-York-to-Turkey Monoplane Starts 17 Minutes Before "Miss Veedol"

ONE ROUND-THE-WORLD

Boardman-Polando En Route to Turkey; Pangborn-Herndon Plan Circle Trip

By David P. Sentner
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, July 28.—In the first trans-Atlantic race in aviation history, two planes today were shooting toward Europe, virtually wing to wing.

The New York-to-Turkey monoplane Cape Cod, jockeyed by Russell Boardman and John Polando, of Boston, shot away from Floyd Bennett Field at 5.59 a. m.

Seventeen minutes later, the round-the-world plane, "Miss Veedol," took off, with Moscow as the next intended stop. Piloted by Clyde E. Pangborn and Hugh Herndon, of New York, the plane is out to lower the eight and one half day globe-circling record of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty.

Two navy planes escorted the flying teams until they reached the open sea.

Both planes followed the northern route and were expected to be within sight of each other thrcughout the "big jump."

Both monoplanes are of the same type and approximately of the same cruising speed.

Neither of the planes is equipped with radio. The Pangborn-Herndon machine carries no emergency life rafts or preservers although the "Cape Cod" contains two life jackets.

Weather conditions were reported fairly good along the route. Dr. James Kimball, weather bureau expert, gave the fliers last-minute reports on the prospects ahead of them.

The pair of giant planes were fueled to the limit. The New York-to-Turkey machine carried 728 gallons of gasoline. The New York-to-Moscow plane carried 830 gallons.

The approximate distance from here to Turkey is 5,000 miles. The route from New York to Moscow is approximately 5,100 miles.

The Pangborn-Herndon plane is powered with a 425 horsepower motor. The Boardman-Polando plane has a 300-horsepower motor.

The Turkey-bound plane started down the runway slowly and gradually lifted its heavy load into the air after a glide of about 4,000 feet.

It slowly gained altitude and headed into the clouds.

Meanwhile, Pangborn and Herndon were warming up the motor of the "Miss Veedol." They taxied down to the runaway and at a faster clip than the "Cape Cod," tore down the runway. After tearing along for 3,500 feet the plane took to the air in a single great leap.

Pangborn seemed to gain altitude more quickly than the first plane. As the pilot circled the field, he waved to the crowd and disappeared over Jamaica Bay, bound for glory or something else.

Russia Holds Her as Hostage

Professor Dmitri Krynin (left), of Yale, whose wife (right) is being held in Russia as a hostage to insure his return to Moscow, where he is needed as one of Russia's most valuable highway engineers. He teaches that subject at Yale. In an effort to secure the release of his wife and permit her to rejoin him in America, Krynin sent two identical cables to George Bernard Shaw and Viscountess Astor, on an inspection tour of Russia, with a plea that they use their influence to help him. Their efforts proved futile, however.

HOPKINS IX. TO PLAY AT I. O. O. F. OUTING

Over 50,000 Odd Fellows and Rebekahs Are Expected at Willow Grove

A GALA PROGRAM

Over 50,000 Odd Fellows and Rebekahs of Southeastern Pennsylvania, under the auspices of the Past Grands' Association, comprising Montgomery, Bucks, Delaware, Chester and Philadelphia counties, are expected at the annual outing to be held at Willow Grove Park on Saturday morning, afternoon and night, August 1st.

The morning program which will begin at 10 o'clock, will consist of games of every sort and description for which valuable and handsome prizes will be awarded the winners.

In the afternoon there will be drills by Rebekah and Odd Fellow staffs assisted by the renowned Medina Band in their gorgeous oriental uniforms.

At 4 o'clock there will be a baseball game between the team of Manoa Lodge, which team won the game last year, and the team of Hopkins Lodge, No. 87, of Bristol. Much interest is being shown on the part of the Bristol boys because the Hopkins team has only been organized a short time, whereas the Manoa team is considered very good. The Hopkins team has been giving a good account of itself in the number of games played, and the Manoa team may find it is no small job to retain the title, and it is just as possible that Delaware county may find that Bucks county knows how to play baseball, also.

New uniforms have just been received and with a crowd of rooters Bristol will be much in evidence.

The evening will be devoted to an elaborate program staged in the band shell, including a band concert by the Medina Band; also by various artists; selections by a double festival chorus of more than 250 voices.

Free parking will be provided, and amusement tickets may be procured at half price by securing coupons and tags from the secretary of the lodge or committee in charge.

A truck has been provided for those who have no conveyance, which will leave Odd Fellows' Hall promptly at 1.30 p. m. Committee arranging for transportation of Odd Fellows is composed of: Franklin Smith, Samuel Conklin, Sr., Rudolph Ruby, Howard Hilgendorf. Members of Lily Rebekah Lodge may make reservations for the bus by notifying any of the following: Sisters K. VanSant, Harriet Conklin, or Stella Fennimore.

Good weather, a good crowd and good luck for the baseball team are the things that Hopkins Lodge is hoping for, and the trophy cup may be on exhibition in Bristol.

Floral Donations To Be Cared For by Mrs. Ardrey

Mrs. S. Bradley Ardrey will be the Bristol Travel Club's representative who will take flowers to the flowerless, leaving the blooms at the Frankford booth Thursday morning.

Besides its regular beneficiaries, the Shriners' Hospital and the Brown Farm, Bristol sent its contribution to a shut-in, one who is blind, yet who loves to feel and smell the blossoms.

FIFTEEN CHILDREN ARE OPERATED ON AT ANNUAL CLINIC

Arrangements Made by School Board Through Medical Inspector and Nurse

TONSILS ARE REMOVED

Bristol Physicians Donate Services; Have Use of Harriman Hospital

Today, at the Harriman Hospital, fifteen children were operated on for the removal of tonsils and adenoids. Arrangements are made for this clinic each year by the local public school board through its medical inspector, Dr. Thorne S. Harris, and the school nurse, Nora L. Jones.

Dr. George T. Fox, owner of the Harriman Hospital, most kindly and generously loaned his hospital and equipment and contributed his own services entirely free of charge. All the other physicians in the town following the course which they have pursued for several years past, volunteered their services.

The little ones who were operated upon were all children of parents who could not afford to pay the fee for performing the operations. The condition of these children was discovered through the medical inspection which takes place in the schools each year.

During the week prior to the clinic, each child was subjected to a medical inspection by his family physician, or by the school medical inspector, to determine whether or not the child was in the proper physical condition to undergo the operation. Every precaution was taken for the safety of the child, and the parents were obliged to furnish a blanket in which to wrap the child when he was removed to his home following the operation.

The citizens of Bristol should feel very appreciative of this generous cooperation on the part of Dr. Fox, the owner of the hospital, and the physicians of the town. It speaks well for the town to learn that the same spirit which actuated the Great Physician over nineteen centuries ago, as He went about healing the sick, is still alive and prevalent in our midst today.

SCOUTS OF COUNTY NOW ENJOYING CAMP BUCCOU

Instruction Along Many Lines — Sports Are Greatly Enjoyed

KEEN ABOUT SWIMMING

The fifth season commenced for Camp Buccou, Bucks County Boy Scout camp, along the Raritan River, N. J., over the past week-end.

The many troops being accommodated at Buccou this week found everything "ship-shape" upon their arrival, and the Raritan River has already been the mecca for the crowd of young Bucks countians. Two swims a day are on the schedule under the direction of Robert X. Perry, of Bristol, assistant Scout executive. There are also special periods for junior and senior American Red Cross Life Saving work, which promises water safety.

For use of the lads three canoes and four rowboats have been provided. The canoes were sandpapered, painted and varnished this summer, and the first group of Scouters and Scouts found them ready for interesting jaunts on the water. The rowboats were also overhauled and painted, and are furnishing many hours of fun and muscle building for the boys.

Volley ball courts are the scenes of lively combats; and four quoit courts are now testing the skill of Bucks county's pride. Deck tennis is likewise taking the attention of many.

Advancement is open to every Scout in all of the camping Second and First Class requirements with the opportunity to pass the merit badges of Athletics, Bird Study, Botany, Bugling, Camping, Conservation, Cooking, First Aid, First Aid to Animals, Forestry, Insect Life, Life Saving, Personal Health, Physical Development, Pioneering, Public Health, Reptile Study, and Swimming.

Cooking this year is being done in the Good Times Hall basement with the last year kitchen being used for the portioning of food, preparation of drinks, and making of salads.

POSSE, HURRIEDLY FORMED, CAPTURES FIVE MEN HERE

Charged With Illegal Train Riding; Held for Further Hearing

PLEAD GUILTY TODAY

Various Rumors Rife As Police and Men Run Down Quintet

A lengthy search by a posse composed of Bristol police, state police of the Morrisville barracks, and a group of Bristol men, this morning shortly after midnight resulted in the apprehension of five men, two white and three colored, who are being held here on a charge of illegal train riding.

Cooperating with the Pennsylvania Railroad police officers who had sent hurried messages to Bristol for the apprehending of the group, the officers and men from this locality were successful in rounding up five who this morning at a hearing in the municipal building confessed to riding on a freight train which made a long halt here during the night.

Those being held are: George Millnor, Camden, N. J.; John Garella, New York City; Edward Bruss, Philadelphia; George Wilson, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Samuel Kelly, McKeesport. The last three named are colored, and were not traveling with the two white men. It is the general supposition that two other colored men eluded the police, as word forwarded to Bristol was to the effect five colored men were traveling together.

After a lengthy search Millnor and Garella were found hiding among some bushes near the railroad tracks at Green Lane, evidently waiting for the freight cars to be unloaded. The other three were taken into custody on Mill street as a search was being made for them in the vicinity of the tracks to the east of the borough.

Taken to the municipal building the five were detained overnight, and with the arrival of railroad police from Jersey City, this morning, a hearing took place before Justice of the Peace Edward Lynn. All five pleaded guilty to the charge of illegal train riding, and were again placed in cells here to await a further hearing tomorrow at nine a. m.

Whether or not other charges will be preferred at that time is a matter of conjecture.

Rumors were rife about the borough to the effect that a child had been kidnapped in New Jersey by some of the men being sought, and word reached the ears of police officers that a lad had been seen with some of the group.

Local police were unable, however, to learn anything concerning a kidnapping case, and the one charge preferred against the men this morning is the only one thus far. Railroad police are making investigations relative to the quintet, and will return to Bristol tomorrow.

NEWS OF THE WORLD TODAY

SANTIAGO, Chile, July 28—(INS)—A new Acting President was attempting to straighten out Chile's tangled affairs today. He was Juan Esteben Montero, who the night before had been named premier by Vice-President Pedro Opazo.

Senor Opazo was named Acting President upon the resignation of General Carlos Ibanez who fled to Argentina as the result of several weeks of revolutionary disorder. Yesterday Senor Opazo was himself forced to yield to popular clamor against him because of his family connections with the deposed president.

Under the terms of the Chilean Constitution the Vice President becomes Acting President when the President absents himself.

The Montero cabinet will continue in office practically as constituted, except that Senor Blanquier, who formed a cabinet that lasted one day during the crisis, has accepted the portfolio of Finance Minister.

LONDON, July 28—(INS)—David Lloyd George, the war premier, who is confined to his London home with haemautra, an ailment of the kidneys, passed a somewhat disturbed night, according to a bulletin issued today by his physicians. His general condition was stated to be satisfactory.

The bulletin said that the haematura was diminishing but that there was still cause for anxiety.

PLYMOUTH, Eng., July 28—(INS)—Sir Hubert Wilkins' polar submarine Nautilus plowed slowly out of Plymouth Harbor at 8 a. m. today (3 a. m., New York) on its way towards Bergen, Norway, whence it will proceed on journey under the ice of the Arctic Sea towards the North Pole.

The submarine has been undergoing repairs at the Devonport naval dockyard here. Its engines broke down during the recent voyage across the Atlantic and it had to be taken in tow by an American battleship which was nearby at that time.

THE UNIVERSITY'S PART

Singularly little attention has been paid to the important role which the institutions of higher education have played in creating the distinctive civilization known as American. Much is being said today, and much of it true, of the overemphasis or mistaken emphasis upon college education. Incredible swarms of boys and girls but little fitted for such training are demanding and securing it. Not a few observers question the advantage of such wholesale application of higher learning to the masses.

But whatever the defects of the system, it is of the very warp and woof of democracy. The people demand the universities and desire and expect much from them. The people feel that the university, especially the state institution, exists for their service and the training of their children; that it is their very own.

The plain, unvarnished truth is that, despite all the crudities, absurdities and superficialities of our system of enormously widespread college and university education, its real service and function has been to prevent the caste system from developing in the United States. It is the failure of caste to get a foothold which has really made possible the fine initiative and intelligence in the use of resources to which American prosperity is ascribed.

Colleges and universities may not always fill the minds of all who attend them. Indeed, many do not want to be filled, and have no minds to fill. But untold thousands have had their eyes opened to truth and to a more abundant life by coming in contact in the universities with the lives of men who have stimulated and inspired them.

PITY THE LAWMAKER

All the busy little legislators, conscientiously doing their best to earn their salaries, are coming in for reproof from some of the great intellects. This must be unpleasantly surprising to the public-spirited statesmen whose brains creak in the effort to devise more laws. But they see their duty, plain as a pikestaff, and it is a dull day that does not witness a brand new bill of an original nature introduced into one legislature or another by some overworked imagination. If the lawmaker were acting on his own initiative, the criticism and ridicule to which he is subjected would be more deserved. He must take the blame for the absurdities in the form of bills he introduces for his constituents, refusal meaning political suicide. Are not legislators more to be pitied than censured?

Behind each of the thousands of bills that have been or will be introduced in state legislatures this year there is a group, usually well organized and sufficiently affluent to have a paid secretary-lobbyist, if not a more pretentious lobby. And how is the representative of the people to know that these little groups of self-seekers do not represent the great majorities they pretend to?

Most of the injustices perpetrated by legislatures upon the state are conceived and engineered by minority, unrepresentative groups actuated by either purely selfish motives or mistaken zeal. Lawmakers are to be condemned mostly for granting lobbyists an audience.

CHAPTER LI.

MARGARET came up, a little out of breath. Peter was with her and one of the gardeners. She had bandage and bandage scissors in her hand, utterly ignorant as to the identity of the stranger or the extent of her accident as she was.

"Travers," she began, and then, quickly, stricken, "You!"

Delight said, smiling a little, not a pleasant smile: "You know me, too?"

"Yes," said Mrs. Lorrimer shortly. "Come, Travers—Peter—between all of you, we can get her to the house."

"But mother," began Lorrimer, wildly, frantically.

Mrs. Lorrimer looked at him a moment. Pity for him, terror, anger, all fought in her eyes for mastery. She said, slowly:

"She's in no condition to be kept standing here." She indicated Peter and the other man with a gesture of her hand. "We'll all be better off at the house," said Margaret Lorrimer.

Supported by Peter and the gardener—as Lorrimer made no move to touch her—Delight was taken to the house. Lorrimer and his mother walked beside her, a strange little procession. No word was spoken.

In the library she was put into a big chair. Peter was sent to telephone Doctor Mathews. Someone else was sent for a stimulant. Then they faced each other, alone, the three of them.

"How did this happen?" asked Mrs. Lorrimer, quietly.

"She came to me," Delight said, wearily, regarding the injured ankle which was stretched out on a footstool. "She came yesterday morning and told me—"

"Who did?" asked Lorrimer sharply.

In Loyalty's Name.

"That girl, Miss Thurston. She told me she that she knew who I was, really. I'd been fool enough to tell that young press agent, Mitchell, my name. She told me that you knew, Mrs. Lorrimer, and that apparently you were not going to tell your son. She wasn't sure what you would do. She felt that—that her loyalty lay with Lorry, and, strangely enough, with me; that it was only fair both of us should know the truth. And she asked me to give her a week in which to bring you to her point of view. After that, if you were still set on Lorry's not knowing, she would leave it up to me."

She sighed. There was a silence. She went on:

"I promised. But on an impulse I came here, found out where you lived and all. Easy enough. I overheard Lorry and—the other girl talking. I made up my mind to go away and, no matter what you decided, Mrs. Lorrimer, to stay away. I started for the gate, turned my ankle and fell."

She looked at them both, a little defiantly.

"We're all in it now," she said; "no use trying to escape. What are you going to do?"

Peter entered the room to say that Doctor Mathews would be right over.

"Go to Miss—" Mrs. Lorrimer hesitated and said, firmly, "Miss Thurston's room and ask her to please come to the library."

Peter took the message without a quiver of the eyelid and left the room.

Lorrimer said blankly:

"Where — Delight — we've searched for you, all over. There was no trace." He looked at her. This was the girl he had loved and lost. She had returned to him. That other girl had been an impostor. Yet he had loved her, thinking her Delight. But this was Delight.

Truth at Last.

Delight Harford said, a little harshly:

"Does that matter now? Time enough for all that latter."

Peter returned. He had, in his old hand, a ring and an envelope with a little penciled scrawl across its surface.

"Miss Thurston is not in her room," he reported.

Mrs. Lorrimer took the envelope. She looked at it a moment, said blankly, "She's gone."

Delight smiled, a little. Gone. Well, she'd done her best for the girl. She could do no more. She'd been willing to clear out but now . . . . She looked about the lovely room and drew a deep breath. Comfort, safety, if she played the cards right. Should she play them . . . at all?

Mrs. Lorrimer dropped the envelope on a table. She stood up and faced her son and this stranger—this woman she disliked so intensely. She said, with a hard white austerity:

"There is, as I see it, just one question which is important now. Did you," she asked Delight, "did you marry my son? If so, have you proofs of that marriage? Are you married?" she repeated.

Delight hesitated. Looked at Lorrimer. Waited. Lorrimer spoke, and his face was gray.

"I remember now," he said heavily. "No!"

"No," repeated Lorrimer.

His mother had gone perfectly white. Now with a great rush, as of relief, her color came flooding back again.

Lorrimer went on, as Delight did not speak.

"As soon as I saw her again I knew — I remembered—everything."

"But," Margaret interrupted, "you thought that Mary Lou was Delight—and you didn't remember then—you clung to your belief—or was it really belief? that you were married to her."

"Is that her name?" asked Lorrimer, oddly. He had been forbidding himself to think of—the other girl. Even when Peter had come downstairs to report that she was not in her room, not, it seemed, in the house, he had kept his mind away from her. He had to get this present, vital situation clear settled.

"Did you marry my son?" asked Mrs. Lorrimer.

Waiting Her Cue.

His mother nodded, abstractedly. And Lorrimer went on, thinking it all out, a furrow of painful concentration between his brows:

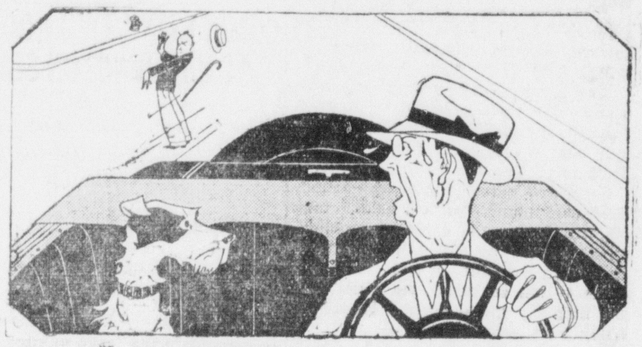

"No, I didn't remember when I saw her. She—was just my memory come incarnate, my memory of a girl I had loved, and who was lost to me. But when the real girl came, I knew at once. "Delight," he looked at the woman sitting, exhausted physically, in the big chair, a woman who was quite patient, waiting, it seemed for her cue to enter this new and complicated drama, a woman who appeared to hold herself in leash. "Delight, you know, you remember? We planned to be married—by special license. I gave you that ring. The earliest day on which we could be married was the day my leave was up. We were to be married, I was to return immediately to the front. Then my leave was shortened, by 36 hours. I was recalled. And went—without marrying you. Do you remember?"

"Of course," said Delight, speaking for the first time in many long minutes. She had kept quiet, waiting to see what he would recall and how much. She already knew, of course, the story of his strange obsession, the obsession that he had been married.

FEDERALS GAIN 12 HITS; A. O. H. EASY FOR THEM

Dave Ennis was no puzzle to the Federals last night on St. Ann's field as the last year's champions downed the A. O. H. nine by the score of 16-8.

The Federals slammed Ennis' offerings for twelve hits and after the second inning when eight runs were scored simply took the game easy.

If Ennis was as good as a pitcher as a hitter he would have had a walkaway for he hit Jones for a home run, double and single. There were several one thousand hitters in the game, McGinley getting two out of two, Custer, one out of one, Mulligan, one out of one. W. Fine had three hits in four times at the plate.

The Federals made two snappy double plays which cut two "Hiboes'" rallies short.

Tonight at Emilie, Emilie plays the Independents while on St. Ann's field, the "Saints" play Harriman. There will not be a game on Wednesday or Thursday evenings.

"It so happens I don't smoke...

BUT I've noticed recently that more of my girl friends are smoking CHESTERFIELD, and I asked why.

"One of them said that CHESTERFIELDS really are milder and taste better—that there is nothing strong or sharp or bitter about them.

"Another one spoke up and said that she too liked the taste of CHESTERFIELDS; but that she was especially pleased with the package—so neat and attractive. Chesterfields—she added—are made right—properly filled—and burn evenly; and she thought possibly they were using a better cigarette paper.

"Still another one agreed with all we'd said. She'd been smoking CHESTERFIELDS for a long, long time, and had always liked them; but she also liked the way they were advertised. The advertising seemed to her to be the truth and the whole truth—it wasn't always knocking somebody or something!"
